Flu Hits South Milam, Closes T'dale School

Fire Guts Trailer On Highway 36

A Belton couple's trip to Cleveland was ended Thursday afternoon when their vacation house trailer caught fire and burned on Highway 36.

Contents of the trailer, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jessie A. Sandel of Belton, were pulled out in smoking ruins by Cameron Volunteer Firemen after they put out the fire, which gutted the trailer.

The Sandels discovered the fire when they were about four miles south of Cameron. A passing motorist turned in the alarm to the fire department.

Cause of the fire was not known, but Mrs. Sandel said it may have started at the butane refrigerator in the trailer. The couple expressed their gratitude to the volunteer firemen for their help.

For Local School New Buildings Unlikely

New cafeteria, auditorium, science lab equipment and expanded vocational facilities were priority needs listed for the Cameron schools in a panel discussion at the Cameron PTA Thursday.

But rising costs, high interest rates and an already tight operating budget left little hope for immediate school improvements according to Hilliard Thomas, School trustee.

Thomas described the School Board dilemma of meeting local building needs with a budget $9,000 under that of 1965. He said the last teacher pay raise had created the $9,000 drop in local operating funds and the raise plus other education legislation that will be effective next year will cost an additional $25,000.

"I don't think we should put some of these needs (new buildings) off," Thomas said, "but we are being forced to. With our present tax base we can't afford the present 8 or 8 1/2 percent interest on a 20 or 25 year bond."

Thomas said the local school financial picture was better than 50 percent of the schools in the state with only a $377,000 total bonded indebtedness. He said many school districts had raised their tax rate to $2.10 (the new state maximum), Cameron school tax rate is $1.50. Thomas said it was unrealistic to talk about a tax rate increase.

"We are going to have to find a new tax source beyond the personal and real property tax for schools," Thomas said. Supt. D. R. Dodson, panel moderator, and Mrs. Herbert Nance, high school teacher, stressed the need for a Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Tuesday, Thursday class scheduling for high school juniors and seniors. The class schedule suggested would be similar to schedules for most senior high schools and colleges.

Additional curriculum suggestions were for: Remedial reading and writing in high school for graduation credit but not for college credit; Two levels of text books for the college bound and 'terminal' students;

Access to television as a teaching aid "to see some of the great moments of our country such as the moon landing."

Mayor E. A. Perrin, former Cameron School Superintendent, compared the present school with the school records of the early 1940's.

Perrin said the Cameron School District was 4 square miles (1 mile in each direction from the courthouse), the present CISD encompasses 304 square miles. The highest school budget was $71,900 with teachers salaries averaging $1,500 a year. The 1969-70 CISD budget is $722,900, with teacher salaries nearing a $6,000 average.

Perrin commented that one of the most striking changes in the schools over the past 30 years was in the field of discipline.

Teachers by themselves cannot make a child what he should be," Perrin said. "Home atmosphere and discipline are essential."

"We had greater control and I believe it was because parents cooperated and backed the school."

Hospitals Reporting Full Beds

Southern Milam County seems to be bearing the brunt of an attack by "flu" germs, with Rockdale and Thorndale reporting an epidemic number of cases. Thorndale schools closed Wednesday afternoon after student absenteeism reached 24 percent. Supt. B. C. Sims said the schools will reopen on Monday.

Reports from other towns and communities in the Milam area ranged from "plenty of people sick" to "it's not too bad here."

The disease has reached "epidemic proportions in Thorndale," Sims told The Herald. Hospitals at Taylor and Rockdale, used by Thorndale residents, are reported full, and Sims said he heard that some patients could not be admitted for lack of room.

Schools in Thorndale had 21 percent absent on Monday and Wednesday 110 students out of the total 465 enrolled, were absent.

An unconfirmed report said that schools at Thrall had also closed this week, but a spokesman at the elementary school said "we're healthy still."

In Cameron, School Supt. D. R. Dodson said student attendance had been running "above normal" for this time of year until Friday, when attendance was about 80 percent.

Dodson said Friday's rain affected attendance, especially among bus pupils. Cameron Junior High had 53 students absent on Friday; Ada Henderson 40, and Ben Milam 40. High School attendance was normal.

"We've been having one to three teachers absent per day," Dodson said.

Buckholts School reported about 13 percent absentees, and said the school cooks were out. Several teachers were absent last week and the illness seems to be affecting more adults than children.

Milano Supt. R. L. Porter said that attendance was fairly good, with absentees less than 10 percent, and only one teacher out.

Attendance at the Rosebud schools was down the first part of the week, but so far not too many students are out, a spokesman said.

The Herald's Gause correspondent, Mrs. Wanda Lee, said "a lot of folks are sick and are staying home," and added that the elementary school there had normal attendance.

Rogers also reported about 10 percent of students absent, "not enough to dismiss the school," Supt. B. F. Harbour said. The illness is affecting many adults in Rogers, Harbour said.

The Milam County Health Unit said Rockdale reported 350 cases of flu for last week. Reports are usually received by the Health Unit on Monday. Fifty cases of flu were listed for Cameron but all local doctors had not reported in, County health officials said.

Newton Hospital officials said they were getting a steady stream of flu patients, however there was no large increase over the last few weeks.

A St. Edward Hospital spokesman said the disease may be on the decline, although their patient load is still heavy.

NOW-NOW-NOW

One of the numerous advantages of the twice-weekly Herald is the savings in groceries, goods and services advertised by Cameron area businesses and institutions.

It is often pointed out that cost of the additional publication each week is saved in a few weeks by shopping the ads which regularly appear in your Herald.

Thanks to good merchandising among Cameron merchants, these savings are offered in each issue. The comparative shopping shows results for the advertiser in more volume and savings to customers throughout the Milam area.

We try to be a marketplace in print.

NOW-NOW-NOW

Tribute goes also to the Herald staff and Herald advertisers adapting to the new schedules and technology with rapidity. Little needs to be said about the problems within a publication when it increases both frequency and means of publication.

To Subscribe For Both Heralds...

All you do is pay $2 for the Weekend Herald and a pro-rata share of what your remaining balance is on your Thursday Herald. FOR EXAMPLE: If your Thursday Herald is paid to August, 1970, you pay an additional $2.05 and the $2 for the Weekend Herald, a total of $4.05. For out of the county the total would be $5.04. Group Discusses Care Center Link

The executive director of the Robertson County Economic Opportunity Action Agency Thursday explained the possibilities of a Cameron child care center and other services through Milam association with Robertson and part of Brazos County.

E. E. Easterly, of Hearne, said that three day-care centers were budgeted for $273,000 through Office of Economic Opportunity funding.

He met with representatives of the Cameron Day Care Center board, including Rev. Wirt Skinner, chairman Bill Hornung, Rev. H. J. Swink, County Supt. H. D. Maxwell, Cameron Supt. D. R. Dodson, school social worker Mrs. Don Humble and County Judge O. B. Harden.

Judge Harden said participation in the OEO combination with Robertson and Brazos Counties would not involve county funds. He planned to present County Commissioners the proposal for information purposes.

Easterly said the day care center program is one of several programs available through the link with Robertson and Brazos counties. OEO day-care funding includes services for food, medical and dental care, nursing as well as regular child care baby-sitting services, he said.

Other programs available through OEO include various types of special services. Organization requires special community committees elected among minority and underprivileged. Easterly said.

It is possible under the proposed organization to bring $100,000 into Milam County for day care and similar services, Judge Harden estimated.

Judge Harden told the group Thursday in County Commissioners' offices that federal funding for a teletype service in the Milam Sheriff's office could be funded directly from Austin.

rather than through a Bell County relationship.

Easterly said reorganization in Robertson County is underway and that Milam County could join with the Robertson-Brazos efforts to broaden OEO funding for day care centers in this area.

CHAMBER MEETING

The regular meeting of the Cameron Chamber of Commerce board of directors has been rescheduled for Monday, Feb. 16, at 5 p.m. in the Chamber office.

The Yoemen's victory brings their district record to 8 wins and only 1 loss against Round Rock on January 27.

They will travel to Georgetown Tuesday and their final game will be against Round Rock at Yoe Gym on Friday.

78-69 Yoe Win In 19AA

The Cameron Yoemen downed Elgin Friday night with a 69-78 win that kept them in the running for the District 19 AA championship.

The Yoemen's victory brings their district record to 8 wins and only 1 loss against Round Rock on January 27.

They will travel to Georgetown Tuesday and their final game will be against Round Rock at Yoe Gym on Friday.

Mothers March Total Over $650

The Mothers March for the annual March of Dimes drive has collected over $650 so far, with reports still to come in from some workers.

Mrs. Robert Clark, MM chairman in Cameron, reported that $609.49 had been turned in from workers who collected last week and said the total will be more when all reports are in.

In the Burlington community, a "42" and Skat party netted $50 for the drive according to Mrs. Herman Dorner, Sr., MOD chairman for that community.

Plans are being made for other fund-raising activities, Delbert Burlison, MOD drive chairman said. The drive ends February 15.

Burlison emphasized that funds are helping twelve birth defect cases in Milam County this year. Each family will receive $150 to help pay medical bills.

Mrs. Clark and Burlison both said the Mothers March collection is "fantastic," surpassing last year's total of some $500-plus.

Total MOD collection in Milam County last year was $3,501.

Forty percent of these funds are retained for use in the county 25 percent goes for medical research, and 35 percent goes to the National Foundation.

Marijuana Trial Set For Tuesday

Narcotics cases charging 3 young men from Austin with possession of marijuana will be tried Tuesday, Feb. 10, in the District Court of Milam County.

David M. Elliott, Walter Homer Snow, Jr. and Frederick Earl Callaway were arrested and charged with possession of marijuana on May 18, 1969, after a patch of the plants were discovered in Thorndale.

Judge Grants Injunction Prior To Feb. 17 Hearing

District Judge W. C. Wallace Friday granted a temporary injunction in a suit filed by Dr. W. R. Newton against Dr. L. L. Nigiazzo to enforce a restrictive covenant in an employment contract between the two men.

"The hearing of the suit on its merits for a permanent injunction was set for February 17," Judge Wallace told The Herald Friday.

The Court decision followed a hearing Wednesday when testimony was heard from witnesses called by counsels for the plaintiff, Dr. Newton, and the defendant, Dr. Nigiazzo.

Dr. Nigiazzo, who has been associated with Newton Hospital since 1962, announced last week that he planned to open a practice in Rockdale, but a temporary restraining order was issued, stopping the move until a hearing could be held on the injunction.

The temporary injunction restrains Dr. Nigiazzo from practicing medicine within 30 miles of Cameron after termination of his contract, reportedly last signed in 1968.

John B. Henderson Jr., attorney for the defendant, said that Dr. Nigiazzo's position was that the covenant should not be upheld because it was not in the best interest of the general public of the county, in view of the shortage of physicians.

Henderson called Henry Litzman, president of the Cameron Chamber of Commerce, who testified about the shortage of doctors in Milam County.

Other defense witnesses included Mrs. Sally Simpkins, of Rockdale, former employee of Newton's; Mrs. Clara Nigiazzo, wife of the defendant and also a former employee of the hospital; Chamber president-elect Rev. Jim Lafferty, Rockdale City Mgr. N. E. Alford and Q. W. Joiner of Rockdale.

Mrs. Nigiazzo's testimony concerned the hardship involved if the Nigiazzos have to move from the county.

Henderson questioned several witnesses about record keeping and bookkeeping practices at Newton Clinic.

Don Humble was attorney for Dr. Newton. Witnesses for the plaintiff included Dr. Newton and Joe Harkleroad, assistant administrator at Newton Hospital.

Their testimony concerned primarily the contract between the two physicians.

BOY SCOUT EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR RON Derry watches Mayor E. A. Perrin sign the proclamation declaring February 7-13 Boy Scout Week. Scouts are celebrating the national organization's 60th Anniversary this year. Special observances include Boy Scout Sunday on February 8, and activities by individual troops and Cub packs.

Program Planned For Rural Water

WAXAHACHIE

A five point program for development was established during the first annual membership meeting of the Texas Association of Rural Water Corporations for 1970.

Jerry K. Johnson, president from Nacogdoches, stated that the Association must provide adequate member service for rural water systems and individual consumers; seek equality in taxation; develop financial assistance for new systems and expansion of those now established; deal with water pollution problems and be concerned with any other problems involving development of rural Texas.

"Your Association must assume the leadership in developing proper waste disposal facilities in rural Texas," stated Joseph Hanson, assistant administrator, Farmers Home Administration, Washington, D. C., to the 300 in attendance.

A. A. Bentsen, secretary-treasurer, reported that the Association's membership totaled 254 rural water systems serving 39,690 meters.

The Texas Association of Rural Water Corporations formed in January of 1969 for the purpose of serving the needs of non-profit rural water systems in Texas.

Area Boys Scramble At Houston

The Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, to be held February 25 through March 8, will have eight Cameron area boys participating in the calf scramble.

Donald Fleming, Robert Riola and Stanley Rosemond of Cameron will scramble on February 28, Mike Malone of Cameron, on March 4, James T. Burnett of Cameron on March 5, Dale Walzel of Buckholts on March 4, Ricky Mendoza of Buckholts on March 8, and Ricky Reinders of Ben Arnold will scramble on March 8.

The scramble is a rough, tumble event with plenty of action between 12 calves and 24 boys at each performance of the rodeo. A certificate for the purchase of a calf is given to each boy who catches a calf, gets a halter on it and crosses the finish line.

Winners in this event must care for the calves and exhibit them the following year at the Houston Show. In addition, they must furnish monthly progress reports to the show, their sponsors and supervisors.

Alcoa Offers Industry Pollution Control System

PITTSBURGH, Pa.

Alcoa disclosed Thursday it is offering for license to the industry what appears to be the most advanced air pollution control system thus far devised for assuring a cleaner atmosphere in and near aluminum smelting plants.

The pace-setting development by Aluminum Company of America removes fumes and particles collected during the production of primary aluminum, so that virtually none escapes into the atmosphere. Many presently available fume control methods are far less efficient and do not possess the Alcoa system's ability to remove nearly 100 percent of the captured effluents from electrolytic cells in which aluminum is refined from its ore.

Achieved after costly and intensive research and testing, the system has been proved in performance at a number of Alcoa smelters both here and abroad and is being installed in others as they are built or revamped under the company's continuing modernization program. By early 1971, Alcoa will have spent in excess of $22 million on applications of this new technique.

The system, on which Alcoa has applied for a patent through its recently formed environmental control division, is expected eventually to replace accepted pollution control methods presently employed by producers of aluminum.

Production of aluminum takes place in carbon-lined electrolytic cells called "pots." To insure clean air in the immediate and surrounding vicinity, Alcoa traditionally has collected pot-room fume and particle emissions at their source, through the utilization of well-designed closed duct systems. Workmen are thus assured a safer environment. Presently available systems, where utilized, treat collected effluents with water scrubbers and electrostatic precipitators. To avoid contamination, this waste water must be treated. Now, however, the new Alcoa system returns the potential pollutants directly to the pots, thus eliminating the water contamination hazard even as the atmospheric condition is being improved in the process.

Alcoa said long-established and newer competitors in the primary aluminum industry, both here and abroad, are evidencing keen interest in this new anti-pollution technique and are contemplating utilization of the proprietary system.

An aspect which has accented this interest is the Alcoa system's capability of enabling the aluminum industry to maintain a high growth rate, while contributing to the international objective of achieving cleaner atmospheres.

Post-Planting Hints For Trees And Shrubs

COLLEGE STATION

Post-planting techniques are as important in tree survival as any other factor.

"A bare rooted tree should be supported to prevent damage from prevailing winds," explains Everett E. Janne, Extension Landscape horticulturist at Texas A&M University.

The most common method of staking is with two or more wooden stakes driven into the soil around the tree and about a foot from it.

Soft string may be used to tie the tree to the stakes. Wire or other hard materials are poor substitutes because they will injure the tree. Guy wires may be attached to large trees if a section of rubber hose is used to protect the tree.

"If rubber hose isn't used, the wire will cut into the tree and possibly kill it," Janne says.

A tree should remain supported for at least two years. Balled and burlapped shrubs usually do not need supporting.

Newly planted trees also need to be pruned. The amount of pruning is determined by the root system, the condition of the plant and its future care. Usually one third to a half of the top growth is removed, the horticulturist says.

Only secondary branches are cut back. Buds along a single shoot can be rubbed off.

Pruning is done to assure a balance of the roots with the top growth. Balled and burlapped plants need little or no pruning.

Plants are not fertilized immediately after planting. A light application of fertilizer should be applied after the first growing season.

After planting, the moisture content of the soil demands careful attention. This is especially true for evergreen plants, he says.

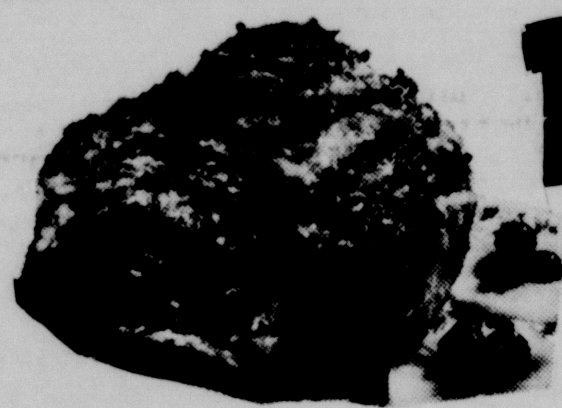

As much or more damage results from overwatering as under-watering newly planted trees and shrubs, reminds the horticulturist.

Plants should not be allowed to wilt from dry soil. Neither should the soil be kept at a water-logged level.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Remember the last time you went into an oyster bar and filled up on the delicious seafood? Or the time you sent to the fish market and bought oysters to serve to your family?

On both these occasions it's doubtful that you worried about what kind of water covered the oyster bed from which they came. You just ate the morsels and enjoyed them, assuming they were fresh and safe to eat.

The State Department of Health is working hard to see that you are provided with safe seafood. To assure that shellfish consumed in Texas isn't taken from contaminated waters and is processed under sanitary conditions, the Division of Marine Resources of the State Health Department keeps a constant watch on shellfish processors.

But despite the watch by Health Department inspectors, "boot-leg" oysters do appear on the market from time to time in violation of the law.

Processors are reminded that it is unlawful to harvest oysters from areas which are not approved by the State Health Department. State regulations further specify that all oysters be processed in clean, certified shucking plants.

The Marine Resources Division has this word for consumers: Look for the certification number on the can or package or oysters you buy. If it's there, it means the oysters have been processed in accordance with state laws. If it's not there, watch out! You may be buying oysters taken from polluted waters or processed in a dirty plant. On gallon cans the number is embossed in the metal on the side of the can. On smaller containers the certification number is printed on the lid.

There is concern over origin of the oysters and their handling. Contaminated oysters have been known to transmit all the water-borne diseases—including typhoid fever, gastroenteritis and infectious hepatitis.

Processors are reminded that the Shellfish Sanitation Law of 1965 makes it unlawful for any person to take, sell, offer or hold for sale any shellfish from an area declared by the Commissioner of Health to be polluted. It also calls for proper handling of shucked oysters within specifications set down by the Commissioner.

Enforcement of these regulations is a big job since as many as 70 oyster processing firms may drop out and new ones enter the field. About four million pounds of oysters are processed each year in Texas waters.

About 750 plant inspections and more than 300 harvesting boat inspections are made yearly by Marine Resources Division inspectors. More than 1 1/4 million acres of bays are kept under surveillance. More than 4,000 maps were distributed in the past year showing safe harvesting areas.

TP&L Plans $94 Million For New '70 Construction

Texas Power and Light Company will spend $94,371,000 for the construction of new facilities in 1970, T. L. Austin, Jr., TP&L president announced.

The construction budget is the largest in the Company's 58-year history.

A major portion of the expense is involved in the construction of five generating units. These units, to be completed over the next few years, will be capable of producing more than 2,8 million kilowatts of electricity and will provide TP&L customers with ample electricity for the future growth of the area.

During 1970, construction will continue on two generating units on Tradinghouse Creek near Waco. The maximum capabilities of the two Tradinghouse units will be 1,340,000-kilowatts. The No. 1 Unit, 565,000-kilowatts, will be completed in 1970. Unit No. 2, 775,000-kilowatts, will be completed in 1970.

In addition, work will continue on Valley No. 3, a 375,000-kilowatt unit, near Savoy in North Texas. It will be completed in 1971.

In addition to power plant construction, the company also will build or improve other facilities in its 52-county service area.

Austin noted that on a nationwide basis, total generating capacity of the electric utility industry in the United States in 1969 reached an estimated 315-million kilowatts. This was an increase of 9.1 percent over the actual 1968 total of 288,8 million kilowatts.

In addition, Austin said that nationally, 1969 generating capability provided an estimated annual margin of reserve of about 16.9 percent over the estimated annual peak demand. The margin of reserve is maintained to insure adequate service and protection against emergencies.

Austin estimated that investor-owned electric power companies had invested a total of more than $84 billion in electric plant equipment at the end of 1969. Expenditures for new construction by these companies during the year were $8.3 billion, or 12 percent of the total new construction expenditures by all American businesses.

Taxwise, the investor-owned electric power companies are expected to have a 1969 tax bill of $3.67 billion, about $190 million greater than their 1968 tax bill, he said.

Color Every Issue? ...

The Herald will soon turn to its 111th volume, a nice number to remember.

Not in 110 years has the response to technological change equalled what is going on at this moment.

It is a commentary on people's opinion of newspapers. And it is one which proves the wrapping is as important if not more important than the present.

The wrapping, as it were, is the new offset package, the semi-weekly publication and the prospect of color, up to four-color process if somebody wants to pay the tab.

Having to overcome equipment limitations about as old as the newspaper has taken 12 years. The critical changes in content and scope, for we truly cover at least 1,000 square miles of Central Texas, came much earlier.

But those changes didn't look as good.

Our recognition has not been for appearance, but now it is a possibility.

Excellence may now be complete, pictorially, editorially, newswise, ad wise.

If this change at times has been too slow, please remember one cannot resolve the problems of a century overnight or even over a few years. Cameron and Milam County have not resolved basic difficulties in any shorter time.

We are, to repeat, elated at the response. We like to think the grit and insight are not new, only the glitter. And we plan considerable of both.

Who knows? We may run color every issue.

Hotter And Smellier ...

It is scarcely news that cities are hotter and smellier than the open countryside, although it is helpful in a way to have a scientist confirm what the poets and philosophers have known for ages. Dr. H. E. Landsberg, a University of Maryland scientist, told an Advancement of Science meeting in Boston that the surface temperature in the two-year-old town of Columbia in southeastern Howard County is now 10 degrees above the surrounding fields and forests and that air pollutants, particularly noxious sulphur dioxide, have already increased 10 percent. This intelligence does not argue that further construction of the promising new town between Baltimore and Washington be halted forthwith, but it is a warning sign of sorts. What will happen, we ask with Dr. Landsberg, when Baltimore and Washington finally grow together, completely engulfing Columbia in the process?

Dr. Landsberg's data came hard on the heels of a report by the Council of Governments on "Open Space Planning and Programing in Metropolitan Washington." That report said that population growth - much faster than anticipated - was nibbling away at the open spaces envisaged in the Year 2000 plan and had already made obsolete that effort to control the future design of the area. Under the Year 2000 plan, wedges of green space were to be maintained to separate the highly congested urban corridors radiating from the center of Washington like spokes on a wheel. But, "land is being put into urban development - and thus pre-empted from open space use - at a much faster rate than was expected," making urgent "efforts to preserve and acquire open space." The area is taking the shape of a solid wheel, rather than one with spokes, bringing in its wake increased pollution, congestion and other inconveniences.

So, what is to be done? One suggestion has been advanced by some Council of Government planners who have urged that we try to slow down the growth of population so that the area will only reach 6.8 million by the Year 2000 instead of the 8.9 million seen in some projections. Considering the fact that the area has already reached 3 million, the lower target of 6.8 million would not seem an unreasonable goal.

However, there is nothing to suggest that the area will be any more successful in restraining its growth than it has been in preserving the open wedges of the Year 2000 plan. By failing to impose the tough zoning restrictions required to save the green spaces, the area's separate political divisions have left the way open to continued intense development. And it is too much to expect that any individual jurisdiction will resist the blandishments of attractive light industry or tell the federal government to put any new installations in another county or another state. Nor has the area the right to ignore the imperative to open the way for more jobs for the area's underemployed black residents.

The whole problem calls for a type of regional planning that has been relatively unknown in America. The studies of the Council of Governments move in the right direction, but they need to be elaborated with suggestions on how desirable growth goals for the region can be obtained. The thinking must involve the Baltimore area as well as Washington, the federal government as well as the localities and it is not too early to start.

UT Researchers Seek Rare Mushrooms

AUSTIN

Mushrooms and home remedies are the two subjects that have taken two University of Texas College of Pharmacy researchers to Jamaica.

Dr. Gerald Sullivan, assistant professor of pharmacy, and Ernest D. Henry of Rockdale, a graduate student, took some free days between semesters to collect mushrooms and information in that island paradise. The mushroom they seek is found only in Australia, New Zealand, Central Africa and Jamaica.

"There is always a chance that we may find something used by these people for hundreds of years that may be useful to modern science," Dr. Sullivan said.

For fences use boards not more than eight inches wide to reduce the chance of cracking due to nailing stress.

Americans own about 1.7 million second homes, estimates the Bureau of the Census.

LETTERS..

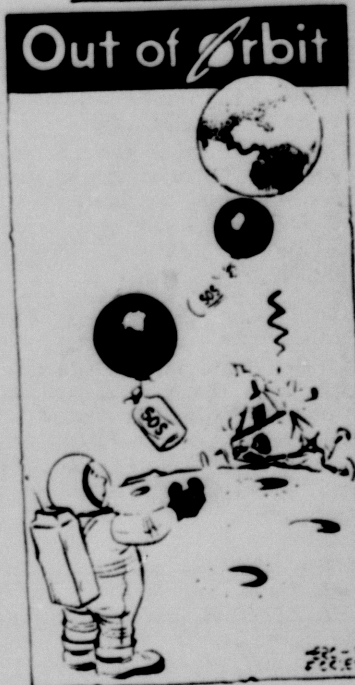

Feb. 3, 1970

Dear Friends - I Noticed here one of the societies there in Cameron, recently celebrated Arbor Day by planting a tree.

The thought of Arbor Day always takes me back to another Arbor Day many years ago when I was marching out of Miss Ada's room singing - "March, O march tis Arbor Day - joy for all and care away; march O march from duty free, to the planting of a tree."

Yes, I helped plant not one but many little trees there on the old campus - thinking of course that we were planting them only for beautification purposes. I never dreamed that these little trees would soon be striking back - that from their branches would come little switches, which our janitor, George Ballinger, would bring for the teacher's use, all tied in neat little bunches - but NOT for beautification purposes. I know that we reap what we sow, but I never did think this was quite fair.

SEE WHILE YOU TALK - C. L. Carson, Manager for Southwestern Bell, recently made a Picturephone call during a demonstration of Picturephone service which will be available in selected locations in the U.S. during the 1970's. Southwestern Bell demonstrated Picturephone service at its pavilion during San Antonio's HemisFair.

Picturephones Scheduled For Home Use In '70s

The proverb "Out of sight, out of mind" may become obsolete due to advances on a telephone which can "see."

While still in the development stage, the Picturephone is moving closer to the day when see-while-you-talk service will be available throughout the nation, C. L. Carson, Manager for Southwestern Bell said.

The Bell System tentatively plans to introduce the innovation on a limited basis in the early 1970's to both business and residential customers in certain cities. "We hope to have a considerable number of Picturephone sets in use by 1975," Carson noted.

As presently conceived, the Picturephone is about the size of a small portable television set complete with a screen for viewing and a camera lens for sending the caller's picture to the receiver. It is connected to one of the new 12-button Touch-Tone telephones.

If a picture call is desired, the person initiating it will start by punching the symbol #, located at the lower right hand corner of the 12-button display on the Touch-Tone phone. Then he punches the desired number and waits for his connection. A distinctive ring tells the called party that this is a Picturephone call, rather than an ordinary call.

Both parties have the option of turning the picture off or on at any time. In addition, if a picturephone subscriber wishes to make a call to an ordinary non-picture receiver, he simply punches out the desired number and the call will go through as normal without sending or receiving a picture.

Carson said AT&T recently completed an experimental Picturephone service trial between the offices of Westinghouse company in New York and Pittsburgh. As a follow-up to the trial, application to offer initial public Picturephone service between the two cities by July 1, 1970 was made in September to the Federal Communications Commission.

Rates for the Picturephone service will depend on market and technical factors, but will be higher than regular telephone rates. Long distance calls will cost more also because Picturephone calls use as many telephone lines as 100 ordinary telephone calls.

Western Electric, manufacturing and supply unit for the Bell System, is currently planning production of a more sophisticated Model II Picturephone set. Bell Telephone Labs has replaced the conventional camera tube with its own development, a silicon target tube.

This tube is so sensitive that it can transmit a picture from an almost completely dark room. At the same time very bright light in one part of the room will not "burn in" one part of the tube and shorten its life.

Such features are important because Picturephone sets are not designed for use in professionally-lighted television studios, but rather by anyone in a bright or dark home or office.

The Westinghouse experiment emphasized the value in time and money of Picturephone service to businesses. Instant face-to-face conferences between company officials are being conducted on the phone, eliminating the need for travel or conferences. Charts, statistics, and diagrams and scale models could be flashed on the screen and received across the country immediately.

Southwestern Bell sees these applications extended to everyday life in the future. The housewife may call her butcher and choose cuts of meat over the telephone. She could purchase fashions by long distance from dress salons in New York or Dallas. And lovers would never again need to worry about the

BANQUET, DISTRICT EVENTS PLANNED FOR GIRL SCOUTS

Cameron Neighborhood Girl Scout leaders planned the annual Father-Daughter banquet and discussed plans for two district events to be held in May at a meeting Thursday in the First National Bank conference room.

Mrs. Wanda Rice of Austin, district advisor, met with the local Scout leaders.

Theme for the banquet, to be held March 13 at the Methodist Fellowship Hall, will be "Action and Awareness," with each troop presenting a skit.

District-wide events being planned include a Cadette outing at Tex-Lake on Lake Travis and a Brownie Day in Taylor. Both are scheduled for May.

Mrs. Lester Williams, Cameron Neighborhood chairman, reported that 129 girls are registered in Cameron Girl Scout troops. Active troops this year include three Brownie troops, two Junior troops, one Cadette troop and one senior troop.

JUST A REMINDER

Year by year our farm people become fewer, but their contributions to America become greater. There is danger that the public will take agriculture for granted--accepting its contributions but misunderstanding or even ignoring its needs.
